Notes

- ❖ Photo by Anon Um Whonoos
- ❖ The night of December 25, to which date the Nativity of Christ was ultimately assigned, was exactly that of the birth of the Persian savior Mithra, who, as an incarnation of eternal light, was born the night of the winter solstice (then dated December 25) at midnight, the instant of the turn of the year from increasing darkness to light. ~Joseph Campbell
- ❖ Cut-ups from the beloved TV series Northern Exposure (ep. 3.10 & 4.10)
- ❖ A Northern Lights legend that comes from the Arctic island of Igloolik, near Baffin Island: auroras are spirits of the dead kicking around the head of a walrus
- ❖ A portion of this episodes introduction (“it’s not about how long we stay in a place...”) is taken from Northern Exposure
- ❖ If you enjoy the sound paintings from Muddy Boots could always use a buck or two or twenty. Every little bit keeps this labor of love rolling on down the road. As always
- Thanks for listening!! ~
